social and cultural anthropology and archaeology are rich subjects with deep connections in the social and physical sciences over the past 150 years the subject matter and different theoretical perspectives have expanded so greatly that no single individual can command all of it consequently both advanced students and professionals may be confronted with theoretical positions and names of theorists with whom they are only partially familiar if they have heard of them at all students in particular are likely to turn to the web to find quick background information on theorists and theories however most web based information is inaccurate and or lacks depth students and professionals need a source to provide a quick overview of a particular theory and theorist with just the basics the who what where how and why if you will in response sage reference plans to publish the two volume theory in social and cultural anthropology an encyclopedia features benefits two volumes containing approximately 335 signed entries provide users with the most authoritative and thorough reference resource available on anthropology theory both in terms of breadth and depth of coverage to ease navigation between and among related entries a reader s guide groups entries thematically and each entry is followed by cross references in the electronic version the reader s guide combines with the cross references and a detailed index to provide robust search and browse capabilities an appendix with a chronology of anthropology theory allows students to easily chart directions and trends in thought and theory from early times to the present suggestions for further reading at the end of each entry and a master bibliography at the end guide readers to sources for more detailed research and discussion the concepts of anthropological economics were introduced by us in the year 2020 in a paper entitled introducing anthropological economics the quest for an anthropological basis for economic theory growth models and policy development for wealth and human welfare maximization and was published in the journal elk asia pacific journal of social sciences volume 6 issue 3 april june 2020 the paper was subsequently published in google books later in the same year subsequently several other papers were also published the objective of our work on anthropological economics has been to attempt to merge the concepts and theoretical frameworks of the disciplines of anthropology and economics thereby creating a new sub field in economics called anthropological economics which is mired in anthropological concepts and principles and sought to maximize not only human welfare and happiness but also wealth maximization across cultures while considering both the psychic unity of man universal human needs and culturespecific factors thus the field of anthropological economics is expected to be inter related to other disciplines of economics but remain complementary to them i e it is not expected that it would intrude into other sub fields of economics replace them or override their principles in any way it would therefore we anticipated draw upon other aspects of economic theory and enrich them suitably it is therefore expected that all aspects of economic theory would be taken into consideration for policy formulation and decision making including those of anthropological economics and independent context specific judgment would always be applied the new and novel proposed field of anthropological economics proposes to take the idea of human welfare to its logical conclusion by extending the work already carried out in various sub disciplines of economics such as those proposed by amartya sen and others and integrate it more tightly with various concepts in anthropology many new tools and techniques have therefore been proposed as a part of our overall work and we believe these would suitably enrich the field of economics as well while many attempts have been made in the past to integrate the fields of anthropology and economics we hope anticipate expect and believe that 3 our endeavour would take this exercise to a much higher level by creating a new generation of anthroeconomists we also hope that it will eventually help move mainstream economics away from neo classical approaches what we prefer to call legacy economics at this point in time to anthropological and human centric approaches the present volume presents our second tranche of additional and auxiliary concepts in anthropological economics the present volume must be read after the contents of the first two previous volumes have been fully read and ingested we say this in the interests of absolute reader clarity this is because the original paper and the previous extensions have not been reproduced here how real is race what is biological fact what is fiction and where does culture enter what do we mean by a colorblind or postracial society or when we say that race is a social construction if race is an invention can we eliminate it this book now in its second edition employs an activity oriented approach to address these questions and engage readers in unraveling and rethinking the contradictory messages we so often hear about race the authors systematically cover the myth of race as biology and the reality of race as a cultural invention drawing on biocultural and cross cultural perspectives they then extend the discussion to hot button issues that arise in tandem with the concept of race such as educational inequalities slurs and racialized labels and interracial relationships in so doing they shed light on the intricate dynamic interplay among race culture and biology for an online supplement to how real is race second edition click here
